The First Wealth is Health: Insomnia Part 3

As I was literally dying from kidney failure, i thought I would try ANYTHING that might help, throw everything against the wall and see if something sticks. My neighbor told me about E.D.S. (Electro Dermal Screening.) To be honest, I thought this was 100% hogwash. I went in 100% skeptic. But, i'm dying, so what did I have to lose? I made an appointment as soon as I could. I went to the appointment. Thinking this was probably some voodoo-sorcery something-or-other, I was not surprised to walk down a hallway lined with human heads on pikes, sticking out of the wall at 45° angles, alternating with blazing lit torches. Then I entered a dark chamber where there was a large, black cauldron and within said cauldron was roiling, bubbling goo of some sort. Nah, none of that happened, but the look on your face tho....

This technology is nothing less than awesome. I rank it up there with an X-ray or an MRI machine and even a SNOWMOBILE. (I said what I said.) Basically, a computer sends a flow of electricity through your body. The EDS tech uses a stylus and touches various nerve endings in your hands and your feet. The computer diagnoses your ailments, and gives you a recourse to fix those ailments. I went into this with my mouth shut (hard to believe, I know). The tech asked what issues I wanted to address. I told her "You tell me" I was still 100% skeptical, and if she didn't find that my kidneys were bad, I was getting up and walking out of there and NOT paying one red cent. This was DUMB. Well, I was wrong, REALLY wrong. She found my bad kidneys and my IBS and then she said "You have insomnia." I asked "how do you know that?" She told me I have parasites and that they are active at night, and when they're active, you're not going to be sleeping. Now, my skepticism started to wane just a little. She found out everything wrong with me without me saying a word! And then, prescribed a treatment regimen. In a few months time, I was cured! What I have noticed is that medical science tends to treat symptoms or wait until there's catastrophic organ failure and then do a transplant. My regular doctor said "we'll keep monitoring it". One urologist said that i was probably just dehydrated!! None of them knew, or could help, or maybe they didn't even care because they are always so overwhelmed.

You should feel good up until the time that whatever is going to take you out, takes you out. You shouldn't be tired and sore and in pain (apart from birth defects and injuries). You need this technology in your life, it will tell you everything wrong with you, and a possible treatment plan. Most people want to be healthy but they don't know where to start. Do I go on a diet? Do I get a gym membership? START HERE. Start with a trip to an EDS tech, you won't be sorry. But Al, there has got to be a catch, right? Well, sort of....$$$$$. This isn't cheap, and insurance won't cover it. I doubt my H.R.A. will cover it either but I certainly will submit the bills when I get some free time. Costs range from $150-$400. Like I said, it certainly isn't cheap, but THE FIRST WEALTH IS HEALTH, is it not? I initially wasn't going to put the website up as this clinic is not in Benton County. I wanted to support OUR county, and keep the money as local as possible. However, health is more important than imaginary geographical lines, and if we have healthy people in Benton County, it certainly won't hurt the cause of the snowmobile club. If you have insomnia or any other issues, schedule an appointment. www.ivoryherbenergy.com You'll be glad you did!!
